BOURBON BOY STRIKES LUCK IN HARLAN.

A lucky discovery in Harlan county lands made some time ago by Mr. Vernon Leer, formerly of Paris, will make him a coal magnate in the future. Mr. Leer, who is a son of the late Mr. J. Monroe Leer, of Paris, and a brother of Mrs. B. F. Buckley, of the Centerville precinct, has been farming in Madison county for several years. He is a cousin of Mr. Courtland Leer and Miss Carroll Leer, of near Paris. The Richmond Register tells of Mr. Leer's investment and its results as follows:

"Vernon Leer, a well known farmer on the Lexington pike, is now a coal magnate. Mr. Leer has acquired a sizable interest in a producing mine in Harlan county, which bids fair to make him a mighty rich man if the present prices of the fuel are maintained a while longer.

"Mr. Leer, his brother-in-law, A. Carruthers and A. L. Lunsford, of Bell county, secured about 200 acres of coal land in Harlan county a few days ago for a sum amounting to about $19,000, it is understood. Only the fact that the mountain owners of the tract had totally exhausted all their resources and were unable to secure backing to further develop the mines, is said to be the reason that it was bought so cheap by Mr. Leer and his two partners. He happened to be in Bell county at the time and a friend informed him of the predicament in which the owners found themselves, and urged him to buy, if possible. An investigation is said to have shown that the mine is of wonderful possibilities. It is located directly on the side of a mountain, with a railroad in the valley below, and the vein of coal was cropping out on the mountain side when the native owners of the land began to attempt to mine it. The main shaft is said to have been driven back into the mountain only about 20 feet, and the coal vein seems to get better all the time, the further back it goes. Mr. Leer and his partners have a good sized force of men at work on the property, which bids fair to make all of them rich men before they are through with it, all of which will be good news to his host of friends here at home."

NEW MINISTER INSTALLED.

Impressive services held for the congregation of the Presbyterian church at the court house Sunday morning marked the installation of Rev. J. C. Rice, recently in charge of the Nicholasville congregation, as pastor.

Rev. J. C. Hunt, pastor of the Madison avenue church, in Covington, preached the installation sermon, and delivered the charge to the pastor. He was followed by Rev. Dr. Frank J. Cheek, of Danville, a former pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of Paris, who delivered the charge to the people and offered an inspiring prayer. Responses were made by Rev. Rice, who also pronounced the benediction. A large crowd was in attendance. Special music for the occasion was rendered by the choir, and Mrs. Frank Fithian rendered a beautiful solo.

The new pastor is a grandson of the Rev. Nathan L. Rice, who was pastor of the Paris congregation from 1841 to 1844, and who came into prominence during the celebrated debate with the founder of the Christian or Disciples church, Rev. Alexander Campbell. He is a worthy descendant of the elder pioneer minister of the Presbyterian church, a forceful and eloquent man, of pleasing personality and affable manners, and will no doubt become endeared as a leader of religious thought and action in his charge here. Paris welcomes Rev. Rice a second time.

UNION SERVICES.

Union services of all the Paris Protestant churches, which will be made a feature of the summer months, began last Sunday at the Methodist church. The schedule for the meetings is as follows:

Sunday, July 15, at Baptist church, Rev. W. O. Sadler, of the Methodist church; Sunday, July 22, at the Episcopal church, Rev. W. E. Ellis, of the Christian church, Rev. O. R. Mangum, of the Baptist church.

The meetings will end on the night of July 29, when Rev. Dr. O. R. Mangum will preach his farewell sermon before leaving for Henderson, Ky., to take charge of the Baptist church at that place.

THE WEATHER.

The weather forecast for the week beginning Sunday, July 8, is as follows:

For Ohio Valley and Tennessee: Occasional local showers and thunder storms. Temperature above normal first half of week; below normal second half.

The weather for the past few days has been of the ideal summer kind, bright and warm. Cooling breezes Sunday tempered the heat and made the day a very pleasant one. Under the genial influence of the sunlight gardens and crops are coming to the front rapidly, but are now needing rain. The weather in a way, is all that could be desired.

FIFTY-TWO QUARTS BOOZE CONCEALED IN HAY.

Jack Tracy, colored, who has figured in the courts before as a bootlegger, evidently feared the panic would soon be on in the liquor question, when he purchased fifty-two quarts of liquor in Lexington, Saturday, and tried to get it into Paris unknown to guardians of the law.

Tracy claimed to be acting as commissioner for other parties in procuring the booze. The fact that he had made the purchase was tipped off to Chief Link, who was searching the interurban cars on another mission. The Chief was told that Tracy and two others were en route to Paris from Lexington in a wagon with the booze concealed in a lot of hay. Link intercepted the booze-wagon near the home of Mr. Forrest Letton on the Lexington pike. A search of the wagon revealed eleven quarts of whiskey hidden under a pile of loose hay. The negroes had been given a tip as to Link's proposed raid and had concealed the remainder of the load "somewhere in the weeds."

Chief Link placed Tracy under arrest and brought him to Paris. He was given a hearing before Judge McMillan yesterday morning and held over to the grand jury on a charge of bringing liquor into local option territory for the purpose of sale.

This is Tracy's second offense, which under the provisions of the local option law, will upon conviction, carry with it a penitentiary sentence.

Officers made a vigorous but unsuccessful search for the hidden booze. They are hopeful of getting hold of the stuff and confiscating it.

CANNING DEMONSTRATOR TO GIVE DEMONSTRATION HERE.

Miss Aubyn Chinn, of State University, will conduct a public demonstration in canning Wednesday morning, July 11, from 9 to 12 o'clock, at the Y. M. C. A.

This will be the first in a series of four demonstrations to be given during the summer, and while these meetings are fostered by the City Federation of Clubs, yet they are by no means confined to club women, and every woman in Paris and Bourbon county, who is interested in the conservation of food, is invited to attend and familiarize herself with the most approved government methods of canning vegetables and fruits.

The demonstration Wednesday will include the canning of peas, beans and berries, and the later demonstrations will have to do with tomatoes, corn, later vegetables, fruits and soup mixtures.

Let it be understood that these instructions will be given FREE of any charge, and it is hoped that every housewife in the county will take advantage of the opportunity to learn simple and practical ways of canning, preserving and drying, and will respond heartily to the slogan, "Not an empty can or jar in Kentucky."

NEW SECRETARY.

At a meeting of the Bourbon County Business Men's Club, held at the court house in this city last Saturday afternoon, Mr. John M. Clay tendered his resignation as secretary and manager of the Labor Bureau which recently instituted the Club. Mr. Clay stated that his farming interests demanded his entire time. The Club selected Mr. C. A. Ellis, of South High Street, as Mr. Clay's successor. Mr. Ellis will serve until late in the fall, when he will go South.

The office hours of the Labor Bureau will be from 5:00 to 11:00 a. m. and from 3:00 to 7:00 p. m. Anyone wanting farm labor can secure same by calling at the Bureau office, in the Anderson building adjoining Higgins & Flanagan between those hours, or by calling Mr. Ellis over the phone.

WHEAT OPENS ON LOCAL MARKET AT $2.00.

Two-dollar-a-bushel wheat for an opener sounds pretty good for the Paris markets. The Paris Milling Co., and E. F. Spears & Sons opened the local market Saturday by paying $2.00 per bushel for several Bourbon county crops for immediate delivery for milling purposes.

The quality of the yield this season is pronounced excellent, and the yield considerably above that of last season. The milling concerns will begin receiving their purchases as soon as the work of harvesting is completed. Harvesting in the county has been proceeding rapidly under favorable weather, and will soon be ready for transportation to the company's wheat bins.

SCHOOL BONDS SOLD.

Messrs. Weil, Roth & Co., of Cincinnati, purchased the entire offering of $46,000 worth of bonds, the sale of which was recently authorized by the Council and voted by a special election for the purpose of building needed additions to the Paris Public School buildings.

The bonds were disposed of in blocks of five by Auctioneer George D. Speakes, at public sale in the City Council Chamber, in Paris, yesterday morning. There was no contending bidder, Roth & Co.'s representative taking each block offered at a par value of $500, with premium added, until the entire amount, $46,000 had been bid in.

The purchase will come up before the meeting of the City Council next Thursday night for approval. Roth & Co.'s representative stated to Mr. Speakes that they had recently purchased blocks of city bond issues at Ashland and at Winchester at very low figures and that they paid no premium. This speaks well for the firm's faith in the financial stability of the city of Paris and is really an endorsement of the highest character of the city's financial future.

PETITIONS TO BE PUT OUT FOR EARLY CLOSING.

THE NEWS was informed yesterday that committees representing the clerks and other employees of Paris business houses will present petitions to the merchants this week, for their signatures favoring the early closing movement, which was forecasted in Friday's issue of THE NEWS.

Several petitions are being prepared, and the entire city will be divided into districts, which will be thoroughly canvassed by the committees who will present the claims of the workers.

THE NEWS is in hearty sympathy with the movement for early closing during the heated term, and sincerely hopes it will be successful in all its details. Early closing will work no serious damage to anyone, but will awake the lazy and indifferent shopper to the fact that even clerks and employees have souls and longings for a little rest and recreation.

J. O. U. A. M.

Several members of Bourbon County Junior Order of United American Mechanics will go to North Middletown, Thursday night to take part in the meeting of the newly-organized lodge at that place. All members contemplating making the trip are requested to notify Mr. Thomas M. Funk.

SERG. MCCLINTOCK'S GREAT STORY IN THE NEWS.

In this issue of THE NEWS appears the first installment of the great war story told by Sergeant Alexander McClintock, of Lexington, who won fame and honors by service with the Canadian troops operating with the English army in Europe.

The story will be published in serial form, comprising six articles, the first of which appearing in today's issue, is entitled, "In Training." The others will follow in the following order: "The Bomb Raid," "Over the Top and Give 'Em Hell," "Shifted to the Somme," "Wounded in Action," and "Decorated for Bravery."

In these stories the author tells in a simple but interest-compelling way his experiences in the trenches, how the soldiers feel and how they live and fight. Don't miss this feature, or you will regret it when others tell you how very interesting it is.

Look for it on page six of this issue of THE NEWS.

ALLIE JONES IS PLEASED.

Mr. Allie Jones, of North Middletown, is much pleased with a suckling colt by Bourbon King, out of Margaret Weissenger, by Chester Dare, and expects to show him this fall at the Kentucky State Fair.

The colt is a full brother to a number of prize winners that Mr. Jones has shown the past two or three years, of which the best is Beauchamp, Beauchamp is now four years old, and has been a good winner for the past two seasons. He was shown last fall at the International Horse Show at Chicago, where he was one of the most admired horses.

The new Jones colt is a chestnut in color, which color has predominated among the produce of Margaret-Weissenger. This mare was a winner at the St. Louis Exposition, at which time she was two years old. The cross of Bourbon King on Chester mares has been a good one, despite the fact that not many of Chester Dare mares have been stunted to him.

FOUND DEAD.

Noah Lanham, colored, aged thirty-one, was found dead on the floor at his home in Kennedysville, near Paris, Sunday night by his mother, who had just returned from her daily work. Coroner Davis investigated and pronounced the man's death due to heart disease, from which he had been a sufferer.

ACCIDENTAL RIFLE SHOT FATAL TO LITTLE GIRL.

As the result of a bullet wound in the head, inflicted by a rifle in the hands of her brother, Hilbert Lawson, Laura, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Lawson, of Walker Avenue, died at the Massie Hospital, in this city, at three o'clock Saturday morning. The wound was the result of an accidental discharge of a rifle in the boy's hands.

About six o'clock Friday morning the children started to a pasture on the Georgetown pike, to drive up a milch cow to their home. The boy took with him a rifle which he had purchased a few days before from another boy. As they proceeded on their way the boy endeavored to load the gun. In some manner the cartridge caught in the chamber, and in trying to dislodge it the trigger was pulled and the weapon was discharged. The little girl, who was in direct range, had been watching her brother in his efforts to dislodge the cartridge. The bullet took effect in the forehead, just above the left eye, passing diagonally through the head, lodging on the right side near the base of the brain, as was later shown by an X-ray photograph made at the office of the physicians.

The accident happened at some distance from the house, but the brother, although panic and grief-stricken, managed to get the wounded girl to the nearest house, a small grocery, where he telephoned to Drs. Wallingford & Gilkey. The little girl was taken to the home of her parents, on Walker Avenue, and then to the office of Drs. Wallingford & Gilkey in the First National Bank building. By this time she was in an unconscious condition, and paralysis had set in in her right side. She was afterward removed to the Massie Memorial Hospital, where an operation was performed, but to no avail, as the little one lingered until three o'clock Saturday morning, when death relieved her sufferings.

Mr. Lawson is district traveling salesman for the Central Home Telephone Company. The family moved to Paris from Charleston, West Virginia, last October. The two children were almost inseparable companions, and the little boy is prostrated with grief over the unfortunate consequences, which though the result of an accident, does not lessen the anguish and grief that has come into his young life.

The body of the unfortunate child was prepared for burial and after brief funeral services held at the Lawson home on Walker Avenue, conducted by Rev. Dr. O. R. Mangum of the Paris Baptist church, was taken at 7:30 Saturday morning to the old home at Charleston, W. Va. The body was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lawson and their son.

The stricken parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement. The little girl was an unusually bright and cheerful child and her friends were numerous and loyal.

KEEPING BEN BUSY.

In the "Notes of the Traveling Men" in its Sunday edition the Lexington Leader says of a popular Paris boy:

"Ben 'Crackers' Downey, representing the National Biscuit Company, wants a social secretary. Ben claims that his invitations are so numerous since he had his fiver made to look like a limousine that it is almost impossible to keep up with his engagements."

BOURBON CAPITALISTS SECURE BIG OIL LANDS.

Paris and North Middletown capitalists representing a large portion of the wealth of both cities, have closed a deal for leasing the oil and mineral rights on all the land lying on both sides of the Plum Lick pike from North Middletown to and across the Montgomery county line. The deal was engineered so quietly that none outside of the interested parties knew of it until Saturday night, when the final action was taken.

The lands under lease lie in a very promising territory, a part of which had been partly developed, or at least the initial wells driven. One well on the property of the Henry S. Caywood farm was driven down over five hundred feet, when the drill broke. The drillers informed the owners of the property that they believed the drill had penetrated the oil and gas producing sands. All efforts to extract the drill proved unavailing and financiers refusing to furnish further aid, the well was left undeveloped.

This well will be reopened, and new prospecting "holes" sunk in the same territory, where good indications of oil have been discovered. The people back of the deal say it is no "wild-cattin'" scheme, but a plain business proposition which will be put through on a solid financial basis.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME WITH ALL CONTENTS.

The home of Mrs. Elmer Simpson, in Newtown, a colored suburb of Paris, together with all its contents, was entirely destroyed, by fire Saturday afternoon, which originated from a kitchen flue.

Mrs. Simpson had built a fire in the kitchen stove and had gone upstairs on a household errand. Upon her return she found all the lower floor in a blaze. Her screams attracted neighbors, who turned in an alarm from Box 32. The department responded promptly, but the fire had gained such a headway that the home was destroyed despite their efforts. Mrs. Simpson lost all her household effects. Her daughter, who had just returned from a visit to friends in Ohio, lost all her clothing which had not been unpacked from her trunk. The loss is total with no insurance.

Sunday morning the department was recalled to the scene of the fire by a telephone request, stating that the ruins of the Simpson cottage had blazed up again, with danger to the surrounding property. The department responded and extinguished the flames for keeps.

An alarm from Box 13 called the fire department yesterday morning to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. P. Bales, on Lileston Avenue. Escaping gas from a gas range caught fire, causing an explosion which for a time threatened to have serious results. The flames had gained considerable headway before the department arrived, but the liberal use of chemicals and water soon got them under control. The property loss by fire was small, but the water thrown on the flames did the most damage.

PERCY REED SPREADS OUT.

The Richmond Register says of Mr. Percy Reed, formerly of Paris, who has been located in Richmond some time: "Mr. Percy Reed, who owns a barber shop and pool room on West Main street, next to the Alhambra Theatre, purchased at private sale from Harvey Lee his barber shop which is located in the same block. This shop was one operated so long and so successfully by 'Cap' Dickerson. Mr. Reed will operate both shops. He is popular with all who know him, it is needless to say everything will be run on strictly business principles and he will soon build up a large and increasing trade."

BANK BUILDING LEASED.

The Bourbon Bank building at the corner of Main and Fifth streets, recently vacated by the Bourbon-Agricultural Bank & Trust Co., has been leased for a term of years by Mrs. Mayme Parker.

The building is undergoing extensive repairs and when completed, Mrs. Parker will remove her stock of millinery, etc., from her present location in the Paton building, on Main street, to the new location. The rooms are being remodeled especially for this purpose.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Lawson and son wish to express thanks and appreciation to their many friends for the love and kindness shown them during their recent bereavement; also for the beautiful floral offerings. Especially do they thank the Central Home Telephone & Telegraph Company, Dr. Wallingford and Rev. W. O. Mangum.

EDITORIAL MUSINGS.

Fishing Time.

Among the many peculiar advantages that the sport of fishing offers its disciples is that of a spring start ahead of all the other pastimes that wait upon the abdication of winter. To-day the fisherman can begin his yearly career of adventure regardless of whether the weather calls for Panama hats or snowshoes. That is, he can start if he is sufficiently determined and inured to the elements.

The golfer, on the other hand, must abide at home in patience, practicing swings and puts, at least until snow and ice and puddles have disappeared; and the baseball enthusiast, whether participant or spectator, is imprisoned pending the arrival of a decent degree of warmth.

The adaptability of fishing to all times of the year and the eagerness with which fishermen take advantage of their opportunities have made necessary the imposition of a legal embargo on piscatorial activities. If it were not for the fish and game laws of Kentucky, some fishermen in Paris we might name would spend the whole year fishing in some manner or other. And if they did this, so remarkably successful are they, the bass would soon go to join the dodo in limbo. Wherefore it is true that fishing may be found in full blast in the streams in and about Paris, while less robust diversions are still immersed in hibernations like the bear.

But the law has no control over the extent of the fisherman's working day. If everybody were to rise at dizzy hours with the alacrity shown by the fisherman there would be no need of daylight savings. Only one thing can compare with fishing as an early rising incentive, and that is an alarm clock, a regular Big Ben!

We note in one of our exchanges that a New York girl has a bathing suit which cost $200. Yet we doubt very much if it contains any more material than the ones some Paris girls take with them to the Boonesboro bathing beach, for which they paid a dollar.

Pass This Along!

There is always room for one more organization in Bourbon county—if it has for its purpose the betterment of humanity. That being true, we offer as a suggestion the formation of a "Sunday Afternoon Club." It would be new in this section only, for they are being started in various parts of the country.

The purpose of the Sunday Afternoon Club would be to give the old people of Paris and Bourbon county who sit day by day within the narrow confines of their little homes an hour's ride in a comfortable motor car out along cool and quiet country roads. It would be the aim of each member to devote an hour on Sunday afternoons to taking for a ride for a few miles some tired mother with a family of little ones, whose hearts could be gladdened, health strengthened and lives made happier.

There are so many cripples who would be given a new lease of life by even a short ride, so many convalescents and so many unfortunates who have never ridden in a motor car, that even with a membership of several hundred the "Sunday Afternoon Club" would find that its roster would not be too large.

There are thousands of ways of passing our blessings on to others as we go through life. But not one is more acceptable than that of gathering up the less lucky members of the human family for a little ride of an hour or so. It would be gasoline used in a noble cause. It would be thoughtfulness that would make for greater happiness than hundreds in this community have ever enjoyed. It would be an organization with only good fellowship and the love of humanity as its dues and fees—and the owner of a motor car so employed on Sunday afternoon would find as a result of the membership in it more real pleasure than he has yet dreamed of life had in store.

The Grump says: "Have any of you Paris men among your acquaintances the type of man who feels that his obligations as a husband are discharged when he provides his wife with a place to do housework and drudgery in exchange for her board and a few clothes?"

THE BOY SCOUTS.

The Boy Scouts of America performed a notable service to the country in their campaign for the sale of the Liberty Loan Bonds. Through their efforts more than $25,000,000 of the bonds were sold directly. How many sales were due indirectly to their activity can not be known.

The Boy Scouts worked systematically and thoroughly and with an earnestness that was inspiring. They covered fields that could not have been covered by other agencies and effected sales that would not have been made without their efforts.

The Scouts have not only proven their patriotism, but they have shown their efficiency and their civil value.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

LETTER FROM "SOMEWHERE IN THE U. S. NAVY."

Mr. Edward Fitzpatrick, now a "jack tar" on the United States ship, the "Oklahoma," "somewhere near New York, on the Atlantic Station," writes to a member of THE NEWS staff as follows:

July 4, 1917.

"I suppose you were beginning to think that Hans or Fritz had gotten me, but I am somewhere on the ocean yet, still on the good ship, Oklahoma, and having a good time as usual. The reason I haven't written oftener is that I have been very lazy at times and have not written to any of my friends.

"I get THE NEWS regularly, and the officers like for us to get newspapers. I read every line in THE NEWS and the Cynthia papers you send me. Although I have plenty of magazines and other reading matter, there isn't anything like a home paper. When the call comes over the decks to line up for mail the first thing I get is THE NEWS and the Cynthia Democrat, and all the other reading matter is at once cast aside, as these two papers are as welcome as the coming of pay-day, (and they come oftener, too.)

"A fellow really doesn't know how good the old town is to him until he gets away from it. We hope to see you soon, for, if Pennington and I can ever get leave of absence we shall come to see you and the old town.

"Ed Doty is still on the Nevada, and Buddy James on the Florida. I have not seen Doty, but Pennington met him at a ball game near here a short while ago. He says Doty is looking better than he ever did in his life and tells him that he has gained sixteen pounds since going on shipboard. It is certainly a fine life, and it is making men of all three of us. The navy forever, boys!

"I can't tell you where I am at present, for the regulations forbid the giving out of any information concerning the location of ships etc., but I have been on the ocean long enough to become salty, anyway.

"I noticed an article in THE NEWS about the marines and their fighting ability. Well, if appearances count for anything, Uncle Sam's marines will interest our saurkraut people across the water, for they are the finest looking lot, of men I ever saw in my life. They are all big, muscular fellows, as quick and as active as a cat, and as brave as men can be.

"Well, there comes the sleepy call, so I must get ready to tumble into my bed (my hammock), which is slung about six feet above the deck, before some sailor friend arranges it so that I will dent up the steel deck when I am in the middle of a nice dream of Noo Yawk and peanuts. Good bye. Regards to all.

"Yours,
"ED. FITZPATRICK."

FARMER'S WORDS
CARRY CONVICTION

Prominent Franklin County
Man Praises Tanlac.

TELLS HOW IT BUILT HIM UP

James Costigan, Forks of Elkhorn, Franklin county, Ky., is one of the most prosperous farmers and influential citizens of the county. He never forms an opinion on the spur of the moment, and his recommendation of Tanlac carries weight.

"For years I had stomach trouble," says Mr. Costigan. "After eating a hearty meal I would often suffer for hours. Consequently I had to live on a light diet which was really not sufficient to keep up my strength.

"After taking three bottles of Tanlac my physical troubles have left me. I haven't had the least bit of discomfort with my stomach. I can eat anything.

"I recommend Tanlac because I honestly believe it a medicine of great merit."

Thousands have said Tanlac builds up health through the stomach, blood and nerves.

Tanlac can now be bought here from Varden & Son.

KENTUCKY MAY FURNISH 9,769

A special from Washington, D. C., says: Kentucky will be called upon to furnish 9,769 men for the first national army according to figures carefully worked out here. This will be Kentucky's quota of 500,000 for the first contingent of the national army.

The following statistics are of interest as bearing upon Kentucky and the draft.

Revised estimate of Kentucky's population, which will be used as the basis for the draft—2,012,586.

Kentucky will be called upon to furnish 9,769 troops as its quota of the 500,000 selected men.

The Census Bureau has found that the number of men who registered in the United States on June 5 comprised 9.32 per cent. of the total population of the country, estimating the total population at 103,000,000. In revising its estimate of population for the purpose of the draft the Bureau and the War Department have agreed that the registration of any State or district including county or city over 30,000 is to be regarded as 9.32 per cent. of the total population of the State or district.

Figuring on this basis the State of Kentucky, which had a total population of 187,573, is estimated to have a population of 2,012,586.

The number of troops which any State must furnish as its quota is in proportion that the population of the State bears to the population of the entire country, which is estimated to be 103,000,000.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COLIC AND DIARRHOEA REMEDY.

Now is the time to buy a bottle of this remedy so as to be prepared in case that any one of your family should have an attack of colic or diarrhoea during the summer months. It is worth a hundred times its cost when needed.

(10-2)

—The Cleveland-Covington District Conference of the C. M. E. Church, the colored branch of the M. E. Church, South, is in session here. Rev. J. L. Thomason, of Springfield, Ohio, is the Presiding Elder. H. A. Stewart and D. A. Walker are pioneers of that branch. The Home Department of the Missionary Society gets chief place at this meeting for something, for something must be done to house the negroes from the South and lead them from the streets and places of vice to the church. Resolutions were passed pledging the negroes' loyalty to "Old Glory" and the President of the United States.

—The Millersburg Red Cross has made arrangements for a canning demonstrator to visit Millersburg. She will give her first demonstration at the Millersburg College on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All the ladies of the community are invited and urged to be present.

—Some men are not satisfied to remain at the bottom of the ladder. They always want to get lower down.

—Some people are always up and doing—other people.

WOODS WILL PROBATED.

The last will and testament of the late Councilman Jack Woods was admitted to probate in the Bourbon Circuit Court, Friday. Mr. Woods leaves all of his property of whatever kind to his wife, Elizabeth Woods, who is named as executrix without bond.

Mrs. Woods accepted the trust and qualified by furnishing bond in the penal sum of $1,000. Ben Bedford, George Doyle and Roy Turner were appointed by the Court to make an appraisal of the estate.

BACK TO OLD COUNTRY.

According to reports received here by friends, James Pappas, who conducted the Paris Restaurant here several years ago, has returned to his native land, Greece, and has taken service in the Greek army against the Germans.

Pappas was one of the most popular Greeks who ever came to Paris. After selling out his business here he went to Winchester, Va., where he was engaged in the restaurant business for some time. Several months ago he enlisted in the Greek army, but was not called to the colors until a few days ago.

HON. REUB. OUT OF POLITICS.
HE SAYS.

Under the caption of "No Time For Politics," Will S. Kaltenbacher, the Louisville Times political paragrapher, has the following regarding the aspirations of Bourbon county's Representative in the Legislature:

"Representative Reuben B. Hutchcraft, Jr., who served Bourbon county in the last Legislature and was Secretary of the State Tax Commission that drafted the new tax law, was in Louisville on his way back from Dawson Springs, where he delivered an address before the State Bar Association, to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., where he is a member of the Kentucky contingent taking the officers' training course. Mr. Hutchcraft said he had gotten politics entirely out of his system and was devoting his time in trying to win a commission in the army."

MEMBER OF PRESIDENT'S BODY-GUARD HERE.

Sergt. Thomas Guilfoyle, of Paris, who became a member of Uncle Sam's big army some years ago, is visiting relatives in Paris.

Sergt. Guilfoyle is here on a furlough. He had been stationed in Texas for several months, and had been transferred to Washington sometime ago, where as a member of the Sixth U. S. Engineering Corps, he was assigned to duty as one of President Wilson's bodyguards, accompanying the President on all his private and business missions in and about Washington. Sergt. Guilfoyle is relictant about army and naval affairs, but has faith in Uncle Sam. He is a guest of his mother, Mrs. Jas. Guilfoyle, and sister, Mrs. Pat Burke, on Winchester street.

"OVER THERE"

The Thrill and the Hell of the Trenches, Described by an American Boy.

Sergeant Alexander McClintock of Lexington, Ky., and the Canadian Army Has Greeting Tale That Every American Will Read, For He Tells the Facts—Unadorned. Wounded, a Distinguished Conduct Medal Man, He Was Invalided Home, but Is Going "Over There" Again to Fight For Uncle Sam and His Allies. An Inspiring, Interesting, Personal Narrative, Full of the Spirit and Atmosphere of the Trenches.

FOREWORD.

Here is a literary product which is at once an admirable example of the force of simple realism in the description of things which are difficult of ordinary comprehension, and a handbook and guide for every prospective soldier of our armies.

Sergeant McClintock has not written stories about the war. He has written the war itself, reducing it, one might almost say, to words of one syllable, yet bringing to the reader's view, clearly and vividly, the various aspects of the great struggle, hidden to all except the man who is actually a part of it. His contribution to the history of the war must be classed as one which shines with a new light.

It is fascinating in its simplicity, yet thrilling in its convincing detail. It leads one, with ever-growing and compelling interest, from a casual conversation in a hotel in New York through scenes of strife and blood and thrilling conflict to the moment when the king and queen of England came to the bedside of a Kentucky youth in a London hospital to thank him in the name of their nation for his services in the cause which we have now come to recognize as that of world humanity.

Sergeant McClintock received the Distinguished Conduct medal before leaving England for home on leave. He is returning to accept a commission in the Canadian overseas forces. The story is told in McClintock's own unadorned way.

I DON'T lay claim to being much of a writer, and up till now I have never felt the call to write anything about my experiences with the Canadian troops in Belgium and France, because I have realized that a great many other men saw quite as much as I did and could tell me better about it. Of course I believed that my experience was worth relating, and I thought that the matter published in the newspapers by professional writers sort of missed the essentials and lacked the spirit of the "ditches." In a good many ways in spite of its excellent literary style, but I didn't see any reason why it was up to me to make an effort as a war historian until now.

Now there is a reason, as I look at it. I believe I can show the two or three millions of my fellow countrymen who will be "out there" before this war is over what they are going to be up against and what they ought to prepare for personally and individually.

That is as far as I am going to go in the way of excuse, explanation or com-

"Boys, for God's sake don't call me Harry. Here comes the general!"

ment, call it what you will. The rest of my story is a simple relation of facts and occurrences in the order in which they came to my notice and happened to me. It may start off a little slowly and jerkily, just as we did, not knowing what was coming to us. I'd like to add that it got quite hot enough to suit me later several times. Therefore, as my effort is going to be to carry you right along with me in this account of my experiences, don't be impatient if nothing very important seems to come off at first. I felt a little ennuui myself at the getaway. But that was certainly one thing that didn't annoy me later.

In the latter part of October, 1915, I decided that the United States ought to be fighting along with England and France on account of the way Belgium had been treated, if for no other reason. As there seemed to be a considerable division of opinion on this point among the people at home, I came to the conclusion that any man who was free, white and twenty-one and felt as I did ought to go over and get into it single handed on the side where his convictions led him, if there wasn't some particular reason why he couldn't. Therefore I said goodbye to my parents and friends in Lexington and started for France and joining the Foreign legion of the French army.

Decides to Go to Canada.

A couple of nights after I got to New York I fell into conversation in the Knickerbocker bar with a chap who was in the re-enforcement company of Princess Pat's regiment of the Canadian forces. After my talk with him I decided to go up to Canada and look things over. I arrived at the Windsor hotel, in Montreal, at 8 o'clock in the morning a couple of days later, and at 10 o'clock that morning I was sworn in as a private in the Canadian Grenadier guards, Eighty-seventh overseas battalion, Lieutenant Colonel F. S. Meighen commanding. They were just getting under way, making soldiers out of the troops I enlisted with, and discipline was quite lax.

They at once gave me a week's leave to come down to New York and settle up some personal affairs, and I overstayed it five days. All that my company commander said to me when I got back was that I seemed to have picked up Canadian habits very quickly. At a review one day in our training camp I heard a major say:

"Boys, for God's sake don't call me Harry or spit in the ranks. Here comes the general!"

We found out eventually that there was a reason for the slackness of discipline. The trouble was that men would enlist to get $1.10 a day without working for it and would desert as soon as any one made it unpleasant for them. Our officers knew what they were about. Conditions changed instantly we went on shipboard. Discipline tightened up on us like a tie rope on a colt.

We trained in a sort of casual, easy way in Canada from Nov. 4 to the following April. We had a good deal of trouble keeping our battalion up to strength, and I was sent out several times with other "noncoms" on a recruiting detail. While we were in the training camp at St. John's I made the acquaintance of a young Canadian who became my "pal." He was Campbell McFarland, nephew of George McFarland, the actor who is so well known on the American musical stage. He was a sergeant. When I first knew him he was one of the most delightful and amusing young fellows you could imagine.

The war changed him entirely. He became extremely quiet and seemed to be borne down with the sense of the terrible things which he saw. He never lost the good fellowship which was inherent in him and was always ready to do anything to oblige me, but he formed the habit of sitting, alone and silent, for hours at a time, just thinking. It seemed as if he had a premonition about himself, though he never showed fear and never spoke of the dangers we were going into, as the other fellows did. He was killed in the Somme action in which I was wounded.

I also had been made a sergeant on account of the fact that I had been at school in the Virginia Military Institute—that is, I was an acting sergeant. It was explained to me that my appointment would have to be confirmed in England and then reconfirmed after three months' service in France. Under the regulations of the Canadian forces a noncommissioned officer, after final confirmation in his grade, can be reduced to the ranks only by a general court martial, though he can escape a court martial, when confronted with charges, by reverting to the ranks at his own request.

Forty-two hundred of us sailed for England on the Empress of Britain, sister ship to the Empress of Ireland, which was sunk in the St. Lawrence river. The steamer was, of course, very crowded and uncomfortable, and the eight day trip across was most unpleasant. We had trips to eat until we were sick of the sight of it. A sergeant reported one morning, "Eight men and twenty-two breakfasts absent." There were two other troop ships in our convoy, the Baltic and the Metagama. A British cruiser escorted us until we were 400 miles off the coast of Ireland. Then each ship picked out a destroyer which had come out to meet her. At that time a notice was posted in the purser's office informing us that we were in the war zone and that the ship would not stop for anything, even for a man overboard. That day a soldier fell off the Metagama with $700 in his pocket, and the ship never even hesitated. They left him where he had no chance in the world to spend his money.

"Make a Break!"

Through my training in the V. M. I., I was able to read semaphore signals, and I caught the message from the destroyer which escorted us. It read:

"Each ship for herself now. Make a break!"

We beat the other steamers of our convoy eight hours in getting to the dock in Liverpool, and, according to what seemed to be the regular system of our operations at that time, we were the last to disembark.

The majority of our fellows had never been in England before, and they looked on our travels at that time as a fine lark. Everybody cheered and laughed when they dusted off one of those little toy trains and brought it up to take us away in it. After we were aboard of it we proceeded at the dizzy rate of about four miles an hour, and our regular company humorist—no company complete without one—suggested that they were afraid, if they went any faster, they might run off the island before they could stop. We were taken to Bramshott camp, in Hampshire, twelve miles from the Aldershot school of command. The next day we were given "king's leave"—eight days, with free transportation anywhere in the British Isles. It is the invariable custom to give this sort of leave to all colonial troops immediately upon their arrival in England. However, in our case Ireland was barred. Just at that time Ireland was no place for a newly arrived Canadian looking for sport.

After that they really began to make soldiers of us. We thought our training in Canada had amounted to something. We found out that we might as well have been playing croquet.

After That They Really Began to Make Soldiers of Us.

We learned more the first week of our actual training in England than we did from November to April in Canada. I make this statement without fear that any officer or man of the Canadian forces alive today will disagree with me, and I submit it for the thoughtful consideration of the gentlemen who believe that our own armies can be prepared for service here at home.

In this war every man has got to be a specialist. He's got to know one thing better than anybody else except those who have had intensive instruction in the same branch. And, besides that, he's got to have effective general knowledge of all the specialties in which his fellow soldiers have been particularly trained. I can illustrate this. Immediately upon our return from first leave in England we were divided into sections for training in eight specialties. They were: Bombing, sniping, scouting, machine gun fighting, signaling, trench mortar operation, bayonet fighting and stretcher bearing. I was selected for special training in bombing, probably because I was supposed, as an American and a baseball player, to be expert in throwing. With the other men picked for training in the same specialty, I was sent to Aldershot, and there for three weeks, twelve hours a day, I threw bombs, studied bombs, read about bombs, took bombs to pieces to see what made them tick and put them together again and did practically everything else that you could do with a bomb, except eat it.

Then I was ordered back along with the other men who had gained this intimate acquaintance with the entire bomb family, and we were put to work teaching the entire battalion all that we had learned. When we were not teaching we were under instruction ourselves by the men who had taken special training in other branches. Also at certain periods of the day we had physical training and rifle practice. Up to the time of our arrival in England intensive training had been merely a fine phrase with us. During our stay there it was a definite and overpowering fact. Day and night we trained, and day and night it rained. At 9 o'clock we would fall into our bunks in huts which held from a half to a whole platoon—from thirty to sixty men—and drop into exhausted sleep, only to turn out at 5 a. m. to give a sudden and exact imitation of what we would do to the Germans if they sneaked up on us before breakfast in six inches of mud. Toward the last, when we thought we had been driven to the limit, they told us that we were to have a period of real, intensive training to harden us for actual fighting. They sent us four imperial drill sergeants from the British grenadier guards, the senior foot regiment of the British army and the one with which we were affiliated.

It would be quite unavailing for me to attempt to describe these drill sergeants. The British drill sergeant is an institution which can be understood only through personal and close contact and is about as cordial as loose electricity. If he thinks a major general is wrong he'll tell him so on the spot in the most emphatic way, but without ever violating a single sacred tradition of the service. The sergeants who took us in charge to put on the real polish to our training had all seen from twenty to twenty-five years of service. They had all been through the battles of Mons and the Marne, and they had all been wounded. They were perfect examples of a type. One of them ordered all of our commissioned officers, from the colonel down, to turn out for rifle drill one day and put them through the manual of arms while the soldiers of the battalion stood around looking on.

"Gentlemen," said he very politely in the midst of the drill, "when I see you handle your rifles I feel like falling on my knees and thanking God that we've got a navy."

A Call For Volunteers.

On June 2, after the third battle of Ypres, while McFarland and I were sitting wearily on our bunks during a strange hour in the afternoon when nobody had thought of anything for us to do, a soldier came in with a message from headquarters which put a sudden stop to the discussion we were having about the possibility of getting leave to go up to London. The message was that the First, Second and Third divisions of the Canadians had lost 40 per cent of their men in the third fight at Ypres and that 300 volunteers were wanted from each of our battalions to fill up the gaps.

"Forty per cent," said McFarland, getting up quickly. "My God, think of it! Well, I'm off to tell 'em I'll go."

I told him I was with him, and we started for headquarters, expecting to be received with applause and pointed out as heroic examples. We couldn't even get up to give in our names. The whole battalion had gone up ahead of us. They heard about it first. That was the spirit of the Canadians. It was about this time that a story went round concerning an English colonel who had been called upon to furnish volunteers from his outfit to replace casualties. He backed his regiment up against a barrack wall and said:

"Now, all who don't want to volunteer step three paces to the rear."

In our battalion sergeants and even officers offered to go as privates. McFarland and I were not accepted; our volunteers went at once, and we were re-enforced up to strength by drafts from the Fifth Canadian division, which was then forming in England.

In July, when we were being kept on the rifle ranges most of the time, all leave was stopped, and we were ordered to hold ourselves in readiness to go overseas. In the latter part of the month we started. We sailed from Southampton to Havre on a big transport, escorted all the way by destroyers. As we landed we got our first sight of the harvest of war. A big hospital on the quay was filled with wounded men. We had twenty-four hours in what they called a "rest camp." We slept on cobbles in shacks which were so utterly comfortable that it would be an insult to a Kentucky thoroughbred to call them stables. Then we were on the way to the Belgian town of Poperinghe, which is 150 miles from Havre and was at that time the rail head of the Ypres salient. We made the trip in box cars which were marked in French, "Eight horses or forty men," and we had to draw straws to decide who should lie down.

In the Front Trenches.

We got into Poperinghe at 7 a. m., and the scouts had led us into the front trenches at 2 the next morning. Our position was to the left of St. Eloi and was known as "the island," because it had no support on either flank. On the left were the Yser canal and the bluff which forms its bank. On the right were 300 yards of battered down trenches, which had been rebuilt twice and blown in again each time by the German guns. For some reason, which I never quite understood, the Germans were able to drop what seemed a tolerably large proportion of the output of the Krupp works on this particular spot whenever they wanted to. Our high command had concluded that it was untenable, and so we, on one side of it, and the British, on the other, had to just keep it scouted and protect our separate flanks. Another name they had for that position was the "bird cage." That was because the first fellows who moved into it made themselves nice and comfy and put up wire nettings to prevent any one from tossing bombs in on them. Thus, when the Germans stirred up the spot with an accurate shower of "whizz bangs" and "coal boxes," the same being thirteen pounders and six inch shells, that wire netting presented a spectacle of utter inadequacy which hasn't been equalled in this war.

They called the position which we were assigned to defend "the graveyard of Canada." That was because of the fearful losses of the Canadians here in the second battle of Ypres, from April 21 to June 1, 1915, when the first gas attack in the world's history was launched by the Germans, and, although the French on the left and the British on the right fell back, the Canadians stayed where they were put.

Right here I can mention something which will give you an idea why descriptions of this war don't describe it. During the first gas attack the Canadians, choking to death and falling over each other in a fight against a new and unheard of terror in warfare, found a way—the Lord only knows who first discovered it and how he happened to do it—to stay through a gas cloud and come out alive. It isn't pretty to think of, and it's like many other things in this war which you can't even tell of in print, because the simple description would violate the nice ethics about reading matter for the public eye which have grown up in long years of peace and traditional decency. But this thing which you can't describe meant just the difference between life and death to many of the Canadians that first day of the gas.

As Dawn Broke We Made Out a Big Painted Sign Above the German Front Trench.

Official orders now tell every soldier what he is to do with his handkerchief or a piece of his shirt if he is caught in a gas attack without his mask.

The nearest I can come in print to telling you what the soldier is ordered to do in this emergency is to remind you that ammonia fumes oppose chlorine gas as a neutralizing agent and that certain emanations of the body throw off ammonia fumes.

Now that I've told you how we got from the Knickerbocker bar and other places to a situation which was just 150 yards from the intrenched front of the German army in Belgium I might as well add a couple of details about things which straightway put fear of God in our hearts. At daybreak one of our Fourteenth platoon men, standing on the firing step, pushed back his trench helmet and remarked that he thought it was about time for coffee. He didn't get any. A German sharpshooter, firing the first time that day, got him under the rim of his helmet, and his career with the Canadian forces was over right there. And then, as the dawn broke, we made out a big painted sign raised above the German front trench. It read:

WELCOME, EIGHTY-SEVENTH CANADIANS

We were a new battalion. We had been less than seventy-two hours on the continent of Europe, and the Germans were not supposed to know anything that was going on behind our lines!

We learned afterward that concealed telephones in the houses of the Belgian burgomasters of the villages of Dinkelsbusch and Renninghelst, near our position, gave communication with the German headquarters opposite us. One of the duties of a detail of our men soon after that was to stand these two burgomasters up against a wall and shoot them.

In concluding this first article I want to say frankly that any man who claims he is not afraid when for the first time he goes into that hell of fire on the western front is a liar, and I'll tell him so to his face. Later we became impervious, but that first day I prayed, and I would have bent down and prayed only my knees shook so.

The five remaining articles in this remarkable series will appear one each week. They are as follows:

No. 2.—The Bomb Raid.

The great preparations and rehearsing for this attack. Volunteers for the job taken behind the line where the German trenches are exactly reproduced. The days of preparation. Heretofore unwritten detail of modern trench raids. This article concludes with the men going out to their job.

No. 3.—"Over the Top and Give 'Em Hell."

The English Tommy's battle cry as he breaks from his trench. The bomb raid and what happened. Of sixty that started forty-six failed to return because the Germans had prepared and mined the trench. Graphic description of Sergeant McClintock's terrible experience.

No. 4.—Shifted to the Somme.

Sergeant McClintock takes part in the greatest of all battles and tells of the hell of it. "The front in Belgium was really a rest sector in comparison with it," he says. The extensive preparations of the allies for open warfare afterward abandoned because of the failure of expected developments.

No. 5.—Wounded In Action.

This article describes the terrible fight, the dead and dying, the loss of a pal and the final falling of McClintock in No Man's Land. Simply told, it is one of the most remarkable descriptions of a battle by a participant ever put together.

No. 6.—Decorated For Bravery; Home and Uncle Sam.

This concluding article of the series relates in detail how England cares for the wounded. How the king and queen came to the bed of an American boy and decorated him in a London hospital for gallantry. Interesting, intimate and amusing incidents told by and of the wounded Tommies. Trying to fight for Uncle Sam.

"OVER THERE"

The Thrill and Hell of the Trenches Described by an American Boy

We have secured a series of six articles by Sergeant Alexander McClintock of Lexington, Ky., and the Canadian army. He has a gripping tale that every American will read, for he tells the facts, unadorned. Wounded, a Distinguished Conduct medal man, he was invalided home, but is going "Over There" again to fight for Uncle Sam and his allies.

Feb. 14, 1917.

Sergeant Alexander McClintock served in the Eighty-seventh Battalion Canadian Grenadier guards from September, 1915, until November, 1916, the last four months of that time at the front in France, where he gained the Distinguished Conduct medal by his devotion to duty and bravery under fire.

As his former commanding officer I can testify as to his good qualities, and I consider he would make a valuable officer.

(Signed)

F. S. MEIGHEN, Brigadier General, Commanding Canadian Training Division, Bramshott.

NO. 1.—In Training. How the men are finally brought to the firing line. A description of conditions that our own boys and their parents will read eagerly.

NO. 2.—The Bomb Raid. The great preparations and rehearsing for this attack. Volunteers for the job taken behind the line where the German trenches are exactly reproduced. The days of preparation. Heretofore unwritten detail of modern trench raids. This article concludes with the men going out to their job.

NO. 3.—"Over the Top and Give 'Em Hell." The English Tommy's battle cry as he breaks from his trench. The bomb raid and what happened. Of sixty that started forty-six failed to return because the Germans had prepared and mined the trench. Graphic description of Sergeant McClintock's terrible experience.

NO. 4.—Shifted to the Somme. Sergeant McClintock takes part in the greatest of all battles and tells of the hell of it. "The front in Belgium was really a rest sector in comparison with it," he says. The extensive preparations of the allies for open warfare afterward abandoned because of the failure of expected developments.

NO. 5.—Wounded In Action. This article describes the terrible fight, the dead and dying, the loss of a pal and the final falling of McClintock in No Man's Land. Simply told, it is one of the most remarkable descriptions of a battle by a participant ever put together.

NO. 6.—Decorated For Bravery; Home and Uncle Sam. This concluding article of the series relates in detail how England cares for the wounded. How the king and queen came to the bed of an American boy and decorated him in a London hospital for gallantry. Interesting, intimate and amusing incidents told by and of the wounded Tommies. Trying to fight for Uncle Sam.

We will print one article each week for six weeks. Watch

CORK CLOTH.

The French have perfected a process for manufacturing a cheap waterproof cloth from cork that is at once warm and durable. The cork is cut into very thin slices, and the slices are treated with chemicals. This chemical treatment is the essential part of the process, for it removes certain elements from the cork which make it brittle. After the treatment, the sheets of cork can be rolled or folded without breaking. These elastic sheets are cemented to a background of thin cloth, and the fabric is ready for use.

or Callous So It Lifts Out Without Pain.

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called Freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn or callous the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn or callous, root and all, lifts off with the fingers.

Freezone dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn or callous without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. A small bottle of Freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but will positively rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or hardened callous. If your druggist hasn't any Freezone he can get it at any wholesale drug house for you. (adv)

ARE YOU ONE OF THEM?

There are a great many people who would be very much benefited by taking Chamberlain's Tablets for a weak or disordered stomach. Are you one of them? Mrs. M. R. Searl, Baldwinville, N. Y., relates her experience in the use of these tablets: "I had a bad spell with my stomach about six months ago, and was troubled for two or three weeks with gas and severe pains in the pit of my stomach. Our druggist advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. I took a bottle home and the first dose relieved me wonderfully, and I kept on taking them until I was cured." These tablets do not relieve pain, but after the pain has been relieved may prevent its recurrence. (adv)

NURSES' POST GRADUATE

The Kentucky Tuberculosis Commission, recognizing the peculiar problems of this State and to meet the demand for nurses, offers a four-months' post graduate course in public health nursing to graduates of accredited hospitals. Students can enter at any time and there will be no fees for the first thirty matriculates and for a selected few of the Commission's choosing one half of the living and incident expenses will be borne by the Commission. The general headquarters are in Louisville, and Dr. J. B. Floyd, medical director of the Waverly Hill Sanatorium, with a capacity of 190 patients, will deliver a series of lectures on the care, prevention and cure of tuberculosis and its relation to public health nursing. Demonstrations will be given in the methods of dealing with the tubercular in the sanatorium, the treatment in the active stage, diet, rest, exercise, habits and the precautions to be exercised by patients and attendants. Miss Nan L. Dorsey, Supervisor of the District Nurses' Association of Louisville, and Miss Mary Coady, Supervisor of Nurses of the Louisville Tuberculosis Association, will give didactic courses in special practice work and with their staff of seventeen nurses will demonstrate to the student nurses the practical methods of the course. Other prominent lecturers and demonstrators will give lectures on the care of the tubercular at home, the city clinic, in the city hospitals, and on the open air schools.

Miss Virginia Martin, Supervisor of the Public Health Nursing Association, of Lexington, will provide a course which will be in the nature of recapitulation of the work done in the separate departments in Louisville. Upon completion of the post graduate course, a certificate of graduation will be given, certificate of graduation will be given which will outline the course pursued and include such recommendation as the abilities of the graduate warrant. There is absolutely no financial profit to any one in the maintenance of this course. In fact, there will doubtless be a loss, but exigencies demand that it be offered so as to supply the constant and growing demand for public health nurses. Address Dr. W. L. Heizer, Secretary of the Tuberculosis Commission at Frankfort, who is also General Director of the Post Graduate School for fuller information.

WHO IS THE SPY?

Some one with access to the confidential files of the Navy department or in a position where he can learn the innermost secrets of the Secretary and his immediate aides, is a German spy.

By some method not yet ascertained this person is keeping the German admiralty informed of every move made by the fleet of this country. He told them when the transports left this country with General Pershing's men and just exactly where and when the Navy Department had appointed a rendezvous for the ships to meet the full naval convoy. It was not a case of one meeting, but two, and strong fleets of U-boats were waiting at both places for two contingents of transports.

Congress, aided by every agency of government, is to make a supreme effort to discover the spy and ascertain the present method of communication.

The Phon d'Amour

Embodies the first vital change in Phonograph Construction

THERE are three critical points in the building of a phonograph—three points where there can be no compromise with possible tone peril: the Reproducer, the Diaphragm and the Sound Amplifier.

It was at these points that Bernhard Fritsch, "Doctor of Violins" as the virtuosos call him, focused his genius as a master instrument-maker in the building of—

Phon d'Amour

The Phonograph Perfect

THE REPRODUCER he constructed in such manner as to give the diaphragm the completest relaxation, so that vibration is induced at the slightest impulse of needle-arm.

THE DIAPHRAGM itself he made of wood, seasoned and fashioned beyond any possible danger of warping; and insuring a resonance of tone not attainable by use of any other material.

Copyright 1917 by
The Fritsch Phonograph Co.

TO THE AMPLIFIER he brought again the genius of the instrument-maker, building this with double wall of finest violin-wood in order to secure the construction principle of musical instruments such as the violin.

From start to finish—from the time the needle-arm lays its impulse upon the diaphragm until it issues from the two-chambered amplifier the tone is true, rounded and full.

It is all in the violin-wood construction at vital points—tone-forming points—that makes the Phon d'Amour a distinctive triumph in Phonograph construction; that differentiates it from all other Phonographs.

The Phon d'Amour is not an assembled instrument; the improvements and features embodied in Phon d'Amour are patented and procurable in no other instrument.

HARRY LINVILLE

DEATHS.

BARBER.

Alexander J. Barber, a well-known painting contractor of Lexington, died at a hospital in that city Saturday night, after a long illness. Mr. Barber was a brother-in-law of Mr. Burr Paton, formerly of Paris, who moved to Lexington several years ago. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Burr Paton, and Mrs. C. H. Woodward, of Lexington, and one brother, Harry Barber, of Nashville.

METCALFE.

The funeral of Mr. Frank Metcalfe, the well-known Lexington cabaret singer, who formerly resided in Paris, and who was killed in an accident at an amusement park in Quincy, Ill., a few days ago, was held in the chapel of the Lexington Cemetery at Lexington, Saturday afternoon at five o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. I. J. Spencer. The pall-bearers were Gordon Hunt, Berry Welsh, Gus Welsh, Leslie Blankenship, Robert Long and Robert Stratton.

The body arrived at Lexington on the 9:20 Q. & C. train Friday night, and was taken to the undertaking establishment of M. R. Milward. Besides his widow, who was from Henderson, Ky., Mr. Metcalfe is survived by his father, Mr. Lee Metcalfe, of New York, and three aunts, Mrs. Bert Sayre, of Lexington, Mrs. Louis Gilson and Mrs. Owsley Stanhope, of Covington.

Mr. Metcalfe made many friends during his stay in this city, who learned with genuine regret of his sudden and untimely fate.

MCDONALD.

Mrs. Clyde McDonald, aged thirty, wife of Mr. T. E. McDonald, manager of the local Western Union office, died at her home on Lileston avenue at 12:30 o'clock Sunday night, after a lingering illness of pulmonary tuberculosis. Mrs. McDonald had been in declining health for a year or more, and the rapid inroads made on her system by the insidious disease brought her so close to the brink of the other world at times that it was thought her hold on life had slipped away.

Mrs. McDonald was the daughter of Mrs. D. W. Cayler, of Clinton, Ky., where she spent the young years of her life, and where she was married to Mr. McDonald. She was a member of the Clinton Baptist church, and a young woman of lovely character, who bore her long suffering with fortitude born of Christian resignation.

She is survived by her husband, Mr. T. E. McDonald, one son, John D. McDonald, one daughter, Glenda McDonald, of Paris; her mother, Mrs. Cayler, and three sisters, one of whom, Miss Grace Cayler, has been in the Massie Memorial Hospital, in this city, for several weeks, following a surgical operation.

A short service was held at the home on Lileston avenue at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. O. Sadler, after which the body was taken to Clinton, Ky., her old home. Funeral services will be conducted at the Baptist church, in Clinton this afternoon, and the burial will follow in the Clinton cemetery.

The death of this young woman is a peculiarly sad one under the circumstances, and the sympathy of the people of this community goes out to the bereaved husband and children, who have lost a faithful friend.

NEAL.

A telegram received in Paris, Sunday, by Miss Mayme Neal, announced the death in Chicago of her brother, Mr. William ("Ballie") Neal, formerly of Paris, who had been a resident of Chicago about eight years.

Mr. Neal had been very ill for several months, from a complication of diseases. At times he appeared to be on the road to recovery, but relapses would set in, death finally winning the grim struggle for mastery. During his illness his mother, Mrs. Julia Neal, was with him a great part of the time, and was at his bedside when the end came.

Mr. Neal was the only son of the late Mr. William Neal and Mrs. Julia Neal, his father having died many years ago. He was born in Paris, where he received his education in the city schools. He became identified with various business concerns in Paris, where he remained until about eight years ago, when he left Paris to locate in Chicago. In the past three or four years Mr. Neal had become an expert electrician and before his illness had been connected with the Westinghouse Electrical Co., and with the Thompson-Houston Electrical Co., in their big plants in Chicago.

Mr. Neal was a young man possessed of many admirable traits of character, not the least of which was loyalty to friends and devotion to his mother and sister. He was well-liked by all who knew him and his passing away is a source of genuine regret to a large circle of friends.

Mr. Neal is survived by his mother, Mrs. Julia Neal, and his sister, Miss Mayme Neal, both of Paris. The body will be brought to Paris this morning and taken to the residence of his mother, Mrs. Julia Neal, at 909 Walker avenue.

Funeral services will be conducted at the residence by Rev. George H. Harris, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church, at five o'clock this afternoon. The burial will follow on the family lot in the Paris Cemetery. The pall-bearers will be: Chas. Wilmoth, Charles Shea, Clarence K. Thomas, James M. O'Brien, Wm. R. Hukill and Will A. Hill.

THOMPSON.

The funeral of Mrs. Lottie Fowler Thompson, aged fifty-five, wife of Mr. Steele Thompson, of Lexington, who died at her home, 136 West Main street, in Lexington, Saturday night, will be held in the Paris Cemetery at 10:45 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning. The funeral cortege in automobiles will arrive at the Paris Cemetery about 10:45 o'clock.

Funeral services preceding the arrival of the funeral party at Paris, will be held at the home of her mother, Mrs. Moses Fowler, 632 West Short street, in Lexington, conducted by Rev. J. W. Porter, of the First Baptist church, in Lexington. The pall-bearers will be A. A. Warner, Frank Brandt, Dr. L. C. Markham, Andrew Bowman, Jos. Thompson and Charles Fowler.

Mrs. Thompson was Miss Lottie Fowler, daughter of the late Mr. Moses Fowler, for many years a merchant in Paris, operating a grocery in the building on Main street now occupied by The Busy Bee Store. Mr. Fowler and family resided on Vine street for many years, and moved to the old building at the corner of Main and Eighth streets, now occupied by the Robneel Flats, where they resided until moving to Lexington.

Mrs. Thompson and her husband for several years operated a poultry farm on the Elmendorf farm of the J. B. Haggins estate. They came back to Lexington a few years ago, where they opened and successfully conducted the Woman's Exchange, on Main street.

Mrs. Thompson will be remembered by Paris people as a young woman of sunny disposition and refinement, whose presence in any circle meant the bringing of good cheer and jollity therein. She was a social favorite here in her girlhood and was always ready to do an act of kindness for any one who stood in need of such ministrations.

Mrs. Thompson is survived by her mother, Mrs. Georgianna Fowler, of Lexington, three sisters, Mrs. Eddie Fowler Newhall, of Lexington, Mrs. Wm. Schrote, of Paris, Mrs. W. H. Cooke, of Hazard, and one brother, Mr. Charles Fowler, of Lexington.

MATRIMONIAL.

County Clerk Pearce Paton issued a marriage license Saturday to Mr. James F. Cummins and Miss Gertrude Lee Barnhill, both of Bourbon county.

FOSTER—VALLANDINGHAM.

Miss Mabel Foster, youngest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Foster, of Owenton, and Mr. J. Gibson Vallandingham, son of Mr. T. T. Vallandingham, also of Owenton, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, in Owenton, last week. The ceremony was witnessed by only the relatives and a few intimate friends.

The bride is a sister of Dr. H. E. Foster, of Paris, at whose home she has frequently visited. The groom is engaged in the tobacco business at Salem-Winston, N. C., which will be their home after their return from a bridal trip to points in Wisconsin.

VEATCH—TAYLOR.

Relatives and friends in Paris have received cards announcing the recent marriage in New Orleans of Miss Musette Veatch, of Lexington, to Mr. George Taylor, of Maysville.

The bride is a popular young woman, well known here, where she has often been a guest of her uncle, Mr. J. J. Veatch, District Manager of the Central Home Telephone Company, and Mrs. Veatch. She is a remarkably attractive young woman, whose affable manners and winning ways made her hosts of friends wherever she was a visitor. Mr. Taylor is traveling salesman for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., and a most capable young business man.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will arrive in Paris this week for a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Veatch, while on their honeymoon trip to Northern points. On their return they will be at home to their friends in Louisville, where Mr. Taylor has his headquarters.

RELIGIOUS.

The ladies of the Methodist church will occupy the Red Cross sewing rooms at the corner of Main and Third streets to-morrow, for an all-day sewing for Red Cross supplies.

The July meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. William Myall yesterday afternoon. Arrangements were made at this meeting for the making of comfort bags for the soldiers.

The Mission Circle of the Christian church will meet at three o'clock, this afternoon with Mrs. W. V. Shaw at the parsonage, corner of Main and Tenth. The Woman's Society of the church will have the only meeting of this month in the church parlors at 2:30 this afternoon.

The meeting which has been in progress at the Spears Mill Baptist church for the past two weeks conducted by Rev. Ernest Mangum, the pastor, and C. E. Summers, of Georgetown, closed Sunday night, with a total of twenty-four additions. A large number of the converts were baptized in Stoner Creek near Shakespeare, Sunday, and others will receive the baptismal rite next Thursday. The singing during the meeting was excellent, and the sermons very inspiring.

AUTO AND BUGGY COME IN COLLISION.

Saturday afternoon, while the crowd on the streets was the thickest and traffic almost congested, three autos coming from different directions, and a horse and buggy met at the corner of Main and Eighth streets. The buggy was crushed by the collision, but the occupants, a man, woman and child, whose names were not ascertained, escaped injury. One of the machines had the fenders badly bent and a headlight broken. The other two escaped injury. The three machines came to a point at exactly the same moment in trying to avoid striking the horse and buggy, whose driver seemed dazed, but one of them struck the vehicle, smashing the front and hind wheels on one side.

The accident occurred at a time when street traffic was very heavy. Travel was delayed until the wrecked buggy and the autos were entangled and taken away.

During the Civil War the "Squirrel Shooters" played quite an active part, but Doug Thomas has started out to see that they don't operate during the present struggle.
